Bernard Baruch Warns Senate Committee Not To Go Too Far In Taking Profits Out Of War

DATE SET FOR SECURITY BILL CONSIDERATION

Committee Completes Semi-Final Action On Measure

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—Initial House consideration of the administration's social security bill was set today for week after next as the ways and means committee concluded consideration of the measure except for one controversial section.

That section—dealing with the establishment of old-age benefits for workers, the money to be raised through taxes on payrolls and earnings—was referred to a sub-committee. The sub-committee expected to have its report ready for the full committee by Monday.

In its semi-final action today, the committee struck from the bill the only provisions giving direct benefits to workers making more than $250 a month.

Unemployment insurance and old-age pensions are limited to persons earning less than $3,000 a year. The bill had included authorization for those above that mark to buy annuities from the federal treasury to pay them not more than $50 a month. But the commitee, by a 21 to 4 vote, agreed to strike the annuities section from the bill.

A much-talked-of attempt to eliminate the unemployment insurance features of the bill fizzled. The committee unanimously decided to retain it.

The unemployment insurance provisions levy a 1 per cent tax on payrolls beginning January 1, 1936, and increasing 1 per cent a year to 3 per cent on January 1, 1938.

William Potts Seeks Release

Pekin, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Through his counsel, William Potts, Jesse Hall of East Peoria today filed a petition seeking his release from the state prison farm at Vandalia under the pauper act.

Hall, a former state representative and ex-mayor of East Peoria, was sentenced to serve a year for the embezzlement of $125,000 from the East Peoria Sanitary District and other public funds. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was also fined $1,000. Though his prison term ic fulfilled he would be liable to further imprisonment because of the fine.

His petition asserted he was unable to pay the fine. State's Attorney Nathan Elliff said Hall's petition would be opposed at a hearing before Judge Henry Ingram next week.

PAIR RELEASED

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy and Arthur O'Leary, charged with harboring the late John Dillinger, were released on their own recognizance today by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. The charges were continued to June 3.

Dr. Cassidy was rearrested immediately, however, by state authorities to face trial on perjury charges at Ottawa, Ill.

Both Cassidy and O'Leary testified for the government against Dr. Wilhelm Loeser and Attorney Louis Piquette. Loeser was convicted, but Piquette was acquitted.

ORDERS RECOUNT

Tuscola, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Judge Joseph L. McLaughlin, presiding in Douglas County Circuit Court, today ordered a recount of the ballots in the election of the Douglas county treasurer. The action was brought by H. L. Waters, Republican, defeated candidate, against Charles E. Heaton, Democrat, incumbent. The vote for treasurer totaled 8,251.

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—Uttering a studied warning that in making plans about war the "chief purpose should be to win it," Bernard M. Baruch today cautioned the senate munitions committee to take care against going too far in taking the profits out of future conflicts.

The veteran New York financier ended three days of debate with the committee late today far from agreement with their drastic plan for commandeering industry in war time. But he proferred his full cooperation in curbing war profits.

His final day on the stand found him first impatient and then vexed by questioning of 32 year old Alger Hiss, committee counsel, and finally frankly so bored with reading of pages of records of the world war that he lay his head forward on the table, resting it upon his long arms.

But it was not for long. As the questioning approached an end, he flatly denied any political factors had influenced his appointments of individuals on the war industries board of which he was chairman under President Wilson, then flung at the committee a warning that too much choking off of profits might cost the nation defeat.

"There is such a thing as taking the profits out of war at the cost of losing the war by going too far," he said.

MONKS AND NUNS IN GERMANY ARE PLACED IN JAIL

Group Charged With Exporting Foreign Exchange

Berlin, March 29.—(AP)—An unannounced number of nuns and monks have been arrested "in numerous Catholic convents," police said today, because of alleged violations of the laws prohibiting the exportation of foreign exchange.

The authorities said laws making mandatory a report to the Reichsbank of any foreign exchange held by German citizens also had been violated.

Numerous searches in monasteries and convents in the middle of the month, police said, established the violations. They said that in the interest of further investigations no details would be announced. It was said, however, that at least 2,500,000 marks ($1,000,000) worth of foreign currencies and shares was involved. The alleged violators were assumed to be in institutions near the German frontiers.

Prayer services were held in confessional synod churches throughout Prussia tonight on behalf of three Hessian pastors who were taken to concentration camps. This made the Protestant church conflict flare anew.

Information which reached the confessional synod told the story of three clerics, Rev. Ruhland of Hirschhorn, the Rev. Peter Brunner of Ramstajt and the Rev. Wolff of Woerstadt, all in the Free State of Hessen.

The story said the pastors had been taken to the notorious concentration camp at Dachau and that there was every indication similar action would be taken in the cases of Vicar Hickel of Bechtheim and the Rev. Schaefer of Buschschlag, who for the moment are in local custody.

HEALTH CONDITIONS ARE NOT ALARMING

Champaign, Ill., March 29—(AP)—Dr. O. R. Scott, district health supervisor, sumoned to Champaign-Urbana following the quarantining of several fraternity and rooming houses in the past week, reviewed health conditions at the University of Illinois today and termed the situation "not alarming."

"The number of cases reported shows little variance with the unprecedented outbreak of scarlet fever that has touched practically every community in the entire state," said Dr. Scott.

No new cases were reported today by Dr. C. George Appelle, who said the presence of scarlet fever in the community as a whole has been below the state average in the past week.

Six campus residences have been placed under quarantine. Single outbreaks of scarlet fever in each house were reported. Houses quarantined are Alpha Epsilon Phi, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Chi Beta, Oregon Arms residence hall, and a rooming house.

INCREASE WAGES

Cincinnati, March 29.—(AP)—The Procter & Gamble company today announced that all employes paid on an hourly basis will receive an increase in wages of 5 cents an hour beginning April 1.

At the same time, all those paid on a weekly basis, the announcement said, will be given increases of $2 weekly.

The increase, the managment said, is effective in all plants of the concern, affecting 5,500 persons, 3,000 employed here.

NEW BATTLES ARE DELAYING RELIEF BILL

Dispute Arises Over Amount To Be Spent For Wages

By Clarence M. Wright
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—A bitter dispute over how much money should be spent for direct wages under the $4,880,000,000 public works-relief bill today pushed the measure into such a tangle that final congressional action on the big measure was delayed indefinitely.

The house was prepared to act upon, and accept, the compromise measure agreed upon last night by senate and house conferees when word was sent up to Capitol Hill that Secretary Ickes objected vigorously to one section of the bill.

The controverted clause would require that a third of the $900,000,000 set aside for loans and grants to states and political subdivisions for non-federal projects must be expended for wages.

Ickes expects to have a hand in administering this phase of the new bill, since the measure extends the PWA for two additional years and it is authorized under original law to make grants of 30 per cent and loans of 70 per cent of the cost of state, municipal and other political subdivision projects.

In his characteristically vigorous manner, the PWA administrator informed Democratic leaders of his objections. His presentation followed intimations from Secretary Wallace that he disapproved of the George amendment, which would make it permissive for the president to make benefit payments to farmers out of the huge fund.

It was later established, however, that the secretary of agriculture would not make an active fight against this clause. Officials at the AAA were known to hold hope that the president could be prevailed upon not to use this power.

Barbara Hutton And Mother Are Flying To Reno

Heiress to Woolworth Millions Will Obtain Divorce From Prince

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Barbara Hutton Mdivani, speeding across the country in a night air journey for Reno, Nev., and a divorce from her Georgian Prince, Alexis, left here after a quick relay of planes at 9:20 o'clock central standard time.

With the same dispatch and aloofness that has characterized her movements since arriving yesterday at New York on the liner Bremen, the heiress to the Woolworth millions transferred from one United Airlines ship to another with her mother, Mrs. Franklyn Hutton, and her attorney, Millard Tompkins, Jr.

Tompkins said the Princess had "a very pleasant trip, resting and talking," since she took to the air at a Newark airport at 3:21 p. m., (eastern standard time) today.

The party paused briefly in Cleveland before resuming the trip to Chicago. They were expected to stop at Omaha, Cheyenne and Salt Lake City and hoped to reach Reno about 7 A. M. tomorrow.

Tompkins declined to discuss the impending divorce action. The Princess' party was flying in chartered planes, staffed with full crews, her stewardess on the flight from Newark to Chicago was Miss Anne Butkiewicz, of Chicago, who said the Princess was 'just lovely.'

Miss Butkiewicz said she told the heiress of her approaching marriage in April to Bill Flora, Chicago employe of the operations department of Ual.

"Princess Mdivani smiled and wished me luck," the stewardess said.

CHARLES W. BRYAN IS CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

Lincoln, Neb., March 29.—(AP)—Charles W. Bryan, Mayor of Lincoln in 1915, democratic presidential nominee in 1924, thrice governor of Nebraska, and defeated last year for the U. S. Senate nomination, today again became a candidate for mayor.

That's the political cycle the brother of W. J. Bryan, the commoner, completed today when he accepted petitions urging him to become a candidate for mayor in the April 9 primary.

The former governor will make the race on a platform for retention of the municipal gasoline and coal enterprises which he instituted as mayor in 1915, public improvements to create employment, and moderation of the liquor business.

EDWARD FLYNN PROMOTED

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Edward Flynn, for 30 years connected with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, has been elected executive vice-president of the system, Ralph Budd, the company's president, announced today.

Flynn, who for the past four years was vice-president in charge of operations, will continue to direct operations, Budd said.

The highest honor a Roman Catholic layman can receive in the United States, the Laetare medal, this year has been awarded to Frank H. Spearman, above, California novelist, by the University of Notre Dame. AMERICA FACED WITH GREATEST MEAT SHORTAGE

24 Marketing Managers Report On Livestock Conditions

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—America, the National Livestock Marketing Association was told today, faces its greatest meat shortage during the next two years.

Twenty-four marketing managers, reporting on livestock conditions in their areas, made the prediction to the association, which represents 250,000 livestock producers.

The most dour report came from F. E. Hanks, manager of the Intermountain Marketing Association at Denver, Colo., who said grazing lands east of the Great Divide for hundreds of miles are in worse condition than a year ago.

"In this area, normally the finest grazing land in the nation, only cactus remains for cattle feed," Hanks said. "Fifty thousand head of cattle must be moved out immediately. Cattle men are grabbing at any pasture land west of the divide which they can obtain, since there will be fairly good grass on that side."

Western Kansas, Hanks said, which is normally a green laws of new wheat, looks like "No-Man's Land," and cattle receipts are exceptionally light.

A. W. Lucas, manager of the Oklahoma Livestock Marketing Association, said propitious rains would develop sufficient feed crops, but reported a shortage of stock and unusually light livestock receipts.

P. G. Evans, manager of the Producers Commission Association, Kansas City, Mo., reported dus storms have ruined feed lands in Kansas and Nebraska. Top soil in the far western third of Kansas, he said, has been blown over the eastern section, ruining chances for good grazing or feed crops.

Arms Situation In Brief By The Associated Press

Russian and British conferees at Moscow reported discussing seeking United States cooperation in keeping far eastern peace.

British statesmen continued work on alternative security system to be presented to Anglo-Italo-French meeting at Stresa, Italy, April 11.

Anti-German demonstrations throughout Poland flared into rioting at Katowice, near Frontier.

Rome, Paris and London exchanged diplomatic notes in preparation for Stresa meeting.

Vienna feared conflict between Fascist Heimwehr and Catholic Storm troops after bitter press exchanges.

Secretary of state Ull said Washington had no official reports from Moscow and declined comment on Anglo-Russian conversationists.

ISSUE WARNING

London, March 30—(Saturday)—(AP)—The London Daily Herald in a Rome dispatch today said the Italian war office had issued a warning that women and children should be ready to leave East African colonies "should the necessity arise."

Washington, March 29.—(AP)—With strikes assertedly threatening in four big industries and labor clamoring for action, the administration hurriedly laid before congress today a secretely drafted bill to extend the NRA.

The measure failed however, to meet the objections of Blue Eagle critics.

It was introduced by chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee after Donald Richberg, new NRA head, appeared before his committee in closed session to warn that four major strikes have been brewing and to suggest that quick action on the recovery legislation would help to settle them.

The administration's chief "trouble shooter" told the committee of threatened walkouts in the automobile, steel, coal and textile industries.

He appealed to the committee to at least get a bill before congress. With the committee's approval, Harrison walked over to the capitol and introduced the measure which he had been closely guarding for days.

The Harrison measure would provide some restoration of the anti-trust laws under NRA, limit codes to industries in or affected by interstate commerce, extend the controversial labor section 7-A, and limit the president's authority to impose codes.

The unexpected introduction of the measure came after William Green, stocky president of the American Federation of Labor, threw his organization's support behind NRA continuation but demanded in the same breath the enactment of the Black-Connery 30-hour week bill, thus far opposed by the administration.

Claiming that extension of NRA was "the only plan which is available to us at this time for the rehabilitation of our economic system," Green told the senate finance committee that organized labor wanted both it and the 30-hour week.

Simultaneously in the house, chairman Connery (D-Mass) of the labor committee, shouted at his colleagues that if the powerful rules committee had not "smothered" the 30-hour and Wagner labor disputes bills, strikes in major industries could have been avoided.

"If those bills had been passed by the house," Connery said, "there would have been no strike."

The responsibility for the 1,000,000 workers going on strike, he said, rested on the house because of its refusal to consider the Black 30-hour week bill in the last congress after it had passed the senate.

Highway Safety Group To Meet

MAN STAKES HIS HOPE ON "LIE DETECTOR"

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—The Illinois conference on highway safety legislation today named a committee of six to appear April 3 in Springfield before the judiciary committee of the state legislature on behalf of the drivers' license and safety-responsibility bills to be considered on that date.

B. P. Alschuler of Aurora will head the committee, which will include J. H. Braun of the Chicago Motor club; C. L. Rice, Chicago; Fred Stowe, the Peoria Journal-Transcript; Sidney J. Williams, the national safety council, and George W. Fleming, executive secretary of Mayor Edward J. Kelly's "Keep Chicago Safe" committee.

Representatives of other civic organizations will be invited to a meeting on the same subject the morning of April 3 in a Springfield (the Leland) hotel.

Alleged Slayer Slashes Wrists

Morris, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Louis Lutz, 30, brought here from Chicago yesterday to face a murder charge, was near death tonight in Morris hospital after slashing his throat and wrists in his cell this morning.

Dr. Gordon Perisho said Lutz cut his jugular vein, windpipe and larynx and that the prisoner probably would not recover.

Lutz was arested as one of three robbers accused of slaying Policeman Clarence Roseland last February 3 during a holdup at the William Gabel general store. Miss Merle Ward, 19, a clerk, was kidnaped by the robbers and released unharmed at Joliet.

Officers questioned Lutz for some time before he retired last night. He was found wounded in his bunk when Deputy Sheriff Roy Helling brought his breakfast.

A piece of pocketknife blade was fousd in the cell.

CASE SETTLED

Janesville, Wis., March 29.—(AP)—Settlement out of court was reported today in the action brought against Beloit College by Robert C. Stubbins, Chicago, to force the college to certify credits of his son to another institution. The college had declined to do so because the tuition had not been paid. Terms of the settlement were not made public.

278 AMERICANS WIN MONEY ON SWEEPSTAKES

Flying Hoofs Kick $2,664,000 Into United States

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Flying Hoofs kicked $2,664,000 virtually into the laps of American holders of Irish sweepstakes tickets today when the Grand National steeple chase was run at Aintree, England.

Four Americans held tickets on Reynoldstown, the winning horse, and stand to collect $143,475 each. Eight tickets were held in this country on Blue Prince and Thomond II, which finished second and third and reward their United States backers with approximately $500,000.

In addition, 274 stubs on non-placing horses netted Americans a total of $846,000, and with the residuals the grand total of American winnings amounted to £555,036 or approximately $2,664,000.

Extremes of joy and sorrow followed as usual in the wake of the big race.

Mrs. Ray Gold, Bronx housewife, bought her first sweepstakes ticket, refused brokers' offers to but it, and now is "too excited" to think what she will do with the $143,475 she won.

Then there was Mrs. Anna Willis, New York office worker, who sold her ticket to a sister for $2.60, the original purchase, when she needed some cash sometime ago. The ticket won $71,737 for the sister, Mrs. Mae C. Smyle, of Aqueduct, N. Y., when Blue Prince finished second.

In addition to Mrs. Gold, the following Americans held tickets on the winner: Ann Goldberg, Philadelphia; Mabel Litzelmann, Olney, Ill., and Charles Connor, Philadelphia bartender.

It was a bad day for Sidney Freeman, the British ticket broker who spent close to $500,000 buying tickets and shares in tickets. They netted him only $119,582, but he did not seem perturbed. He pointed out he would not know how his firm in London had done as a whole until he received reports from the rest of the world.

Modern Science Gives Girl Her One Last Hope

Chicago Sugeons Find Serum With Antibodies to Counter Infection

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Modern science gave pretty Virginia Brown, 16, "one last hope" against an infection which was rapidly burning her life away. Today the last hope brought her back from death's door.

The girl had been delirious for nearly two weeks with a fever that at times reached 106 degrees, the result of a strerptococcus infection which developed from a blister-worn in her first appearance as a professional dancer.

Amptation of the girl's left foot was discussed, but it was concluded the infection had become too general. Virginia's doctors decided to fight the infection by a relatively new method.

They canvassed hospital patient lists for persons who were convalescing from scarlet fever or erysipelas—two fairly common streptococcic diseases. They need a patient whose blood was the same type as the girl's.

Late last night, after Dr. Chester W. Trowbridge had sent out another call for vounteers, exactly the right person was found. A serum was made from his blood—containing antibodies to counter the infection.

"Miss Brown responded quickly" the doctor reported today. "Her temperature fell and today she is much improved."

BEGIN INSPECTION OF ILLINOIS ROADHOUSES

Springfield, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Inspection of all roadhouses and taverns in an effort to eliminate fire hazards was begun today in Sangamon county, the start of a state-wide program according to Sherman V. Coultas, state fire marshal.

Deputy Charles J. Mattson of Moline is directing the inspection in co-operation with local officials. Exits, decorations and structural arrangements of buildings will be given special attention so that the danger of loss of life from possible fires may be reduced to a minmum.

The inspection was begun at the request of Governor Horner following the tragedy last Sunday at the Club Rendezvous near Chicago in which seven people lost their lives and many were injured.

FLAG WAVING

Berlin, March 29.—(AP)—Flag waving, which has reached tremendous proportions in Nazi Germany, is to be reduced by a decree of the minister of war in order to economize on wool.

The size of the flags and the number of them used are to be cut down. The decree asked today that where more than one flag pole stands on a building or an estate others be eliminated whenever possible and only flags of small dimensions be used.

United States May be Asked To Help Five Other Nations Maintain Peace in Far East

By John Lloyd
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Moscow, March 29.—(AP)—Authoritative quarters here today said Russian and British statesmen meeting to discuss ways of safeguarding peace considered inviting the United States to help five other interested nations guard against war in the far east.

While the topics discussed at today's meetings were not disclosed, the Russians denied that the reported "far eastern locarno" agreement had come up.

Despite the denial, informed quarters persisted in their belief that Joseph Stalin, Soviet dictator, and Maxim Litvinoff, foreign commissar, proposed to Capt. Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal, extension in some form of the Locarno security system to the Orient.

(Reliable sources at London also said they had received information from Moscow that the far eastern pact proposal was considered.)

Included in the suggested pact, it was said, would be the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet, China, France and probably Japan.

The pact proposal became known after the young British statesman, in company with Lord Chilston, British ambassador, called at Stalin's plainly furnished office in the Kremlin for one of the dictator's race conferences.

There the British found Stalin—wearing grey tunic, blue riding breeches and high black boots—waiting with Litvinoff, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, president of the council of people's commissars (premier), Ivan Maisky, Russian ambassador to Great Britain, and interpreters.

With Litvinoff helping the interpreters and himself figuring importantly in the discussions, the British and Russians talked European and world affairs for an hour. It was said afterward Stalin displayed "great interest in world affairs."

MACHINE GUN BANDITS ARE BEING HUNTED

Desperate Plot To Free Five Convicts Is Frustrated

Boston, March 29.—(AP)—An interstate gang of machine gun bandits was sought tonight in a sweeping investigation of a desperate plot to liberate five long-term convicts and to launch a reign of teror with holdups at 59 banks and other corporations in five New England States, New Jersey and Nebraska.

Details of the frustrated plot were revealed by Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of corrections, after a trap set by State Police failed to capture the "outside" gangsters who allegedly planned to deliver the five prisoners from the "model" Norfolk prison colony last night.

Fifty-nine textile mills, manufacturing plants, banks, railroad stations and city treasurers in 37 cities were listed on a photostatic copy, printed on a piece of cardboard three by four inches, seized in the cell of one of the five convicts implicated.

Later it was indicated that the list of banks and mills might have included the names of previous victims of robberies. The Lincoln (Neb.) National bank referred to in the notations seized was robbed of approximately $2,870,000 in 1930, and is no longer open.

"It was 'Dillinger' stuff," commissioner Lyman declared tonight. "It was the most carefully planned jail delivery in the history of Massachusetts."

Lyman said [illegible]ps of the seven states, formulae for high explosives and a list of doctors who could perform "face lifting" operations also were seized from the cells.

The list of prospective victims, which contained instructions in some cases as to when the payrolls arrived and how much money could be seized, was headed by the "Lincoln, Neb. National bank" with a notation $2,870,000," the "Pensgrove, New Jersey," bank with "$130,000" and "Rahway, New Jersey" and "$82,000."

Greece's Public Enemy Is Freed

Athens, March 29.—(AP)—A Greek court tonight acquitted all prisoners charged with an attack on former premier Eleutherios Venizelos, asserted leader of the recent revolt, in June, 1933.

Those released by the Assize court included bandit chief Arathanassis, sometimes called Greere's "public enemy No. 1" and 17 other persons the prosecution charged conspired with him to attempt Venizelos' life.

Twelve of the defendants, including Jianni Poly Chronopollos, former chief of the criminal investigation department, were ex-policemen accused of entering the employ of the would-be assassins.

The trial got under way February 21, a short time before the outbreak of the revolution which the government charged Venizelos headed.

RAY HAMILTON AND COMPANION ELUDE OFFICERS

Release Two Hostages In Heart Of City Of Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., March 29.—(AP)—Raymond Hamilton, the south's most desperate criminal, and an unidentified wounded companion, fresh from a new orgy of robberies, shooting and kidnapings, eluded officers today after abandoning two hostages in the heart of the city.

Department of justice agents said that two men a hotel bell hop had reported as inquiring the direction to West Memphis, Ark., were in reality Hamilton's victims, inquiring the way back to Mississippi. The bell hop had told newspapermen he had seen Hamilton.

The men abandoned here were M. E. Smith, Jefferson Davis county, (Mississippi) farm agent, and Ralph Bayliss, Prentiss merchant, who were abducted yesterday as hostages in the robbers' wild flight from Prentiss where the outlaws looted a bank of $1,100.

"Hamilton told the two men he had $1,100 in his pockets," Will T. Griffin, inspector of detectives, said. He added that Smith and Bayliss returned to Mississippi late today in the Bayliss automobile, in which the two were held as hostages.

Smith and Bayliss were members of a posse scouring the section around Prentiss following the bank holdup. The bandits escaped after stealing four automobiles, shooting two persons and disarming the posse of which Smith and Bayliss were members.

At the police station here Smith and Bayliss positively identified photographs of Hamilton from among photographs of several criminals.

After talking with Will T. Griffin, inspector of Memphis detectives, the men were taken to the federal building where they were questioned at length by department of justice agents. Smith told Inspector Griffin that Hamilton's companion was shot in one cheek, the right hand, in the back and in one leg and was in a weakened condition.

Before entering Memphis the desperadoes had run a gaunlet of officers in north and central Mississippi.

"Hamilton had his machine gun on me, and I was forced to do most of the driving toward Memphis," Smith told police. Between Hernando and Memphis the gunmen stopped the car and made Bayliss change clothes with the wounded man. Bayliss had on the bullet-riddled clothing when he arrived here.

CONVICT W[illegible]APED 20 YEARS A[illegible] NABBED

Marian, Ind., March 29.—(AP)—Robert E. Moore, 55, said by police to have confessed he escaped from the Nebraska penitentiary more than 20 years ago while serving a sentence for highway robbery, was arrested today on a charge of taking money under false pretenses.

Moore was conducting revival services here when arrested. In the revival meetings, police said, he represented himself as a discharged convict and gave his home as Danville, Ill., (406 Grant street) where he said his wife, Laura Moore, lives.

Moore told police, they asserted, he was serving the Nebraska prison term under the name of Charles Williams when he escaped. Nebraska authorities were notified.

Olney Woman Wins $142,500 On Her First Race "Bet"

Olney, Ill., March 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Litzelmann never bets on the horses.

That is, she ever did but once, and she'll never need to again.

Her lottery ticket on the grand national steeplechase at Aintree, Enggand, was in the bag when Reynoldstown romped home today, and it was as good as $142,500 cash.

Mrs. Litzelmann keeps house for her husband's hotel, the Litz. She was doing just that when the breath-taking news came to Olney. It was probably the biggest piece of news since Olney went on the Illinois map.

Darby (yes, Darby) Lanter, the Hotel clerk, broke it to the boss' wife. Lanter had bought a lottery ticket, too.

"She just looked at me blankly a minute," Lanter said afterward, "a[illegible] then put her head in her arms a[illegible] cried. The rest of us cried with h[illegible]. Then she and her husband went [illegible]o church."

They had already been to church once this morning. The second trip was to give thanks.

Even with the cost of living scooting up, $142,500 is a handsome bit of money but Mr. and Mrs. Litzelmann had no ready ideas today on how to spend the unexpected increment. They have no children.

Good News From West

A traveling man who has spent the past three years in the west arrived in this city the past week. He brought good news of an upturn in business on the coast. It seems that private capital is loosening up in that region. The traveler is interested in the chemical industry. He reports the spending of $112,000,000 for new chemical plants in three western and southwestern and southwestern states.

He also says the ocean freight business is better. A year ago outgoing steamers would wait overtime for freight to arrive at the docks. Now late freight is being rejected for lack of room in the holds. Better export business is the cause.

Such news from any section of the country is encouraging. But from the northwest cities the traveler brings the news that lumberjacks who idled in the streets have gone back to work, and that panhandlers are less in evidence. Employment is better.

If such conditions become general perhaps we shall see the end of the depression soon. All that is needed is for the government to ease the restrictions on business and give private capital a chance to function normally once more. The entire nation is in need of the products of industry, agriculture, the factory and the farm. It has been a long time since the country was engaged in the creation of new wealth, but it can happen again when conditions are right.

Care For The Horse

Farm horses are coming into the spring work season poorly nourished and thin. They are soft and ill fitted for hard work in the fields. Many of them are old. They are also more expensive than ever this season and are therefore more worthy of care.

Farmers should take good care of their horses and so treat them that they will go thru the work season in good shape. Otherwise the loss of a horse may set back the farm work at a most inopportune time.

Owing to the lack of feed the farmers have been compelled to "rough" their stock thru the winter. That is why many horses are in poor condition. They are of course unusued to hard work. The older they are the less able they are to stand hard work.

Not for many years have horses commanded such good prices. The need of them on farms has so greatly increased that there is a real scarcity. Raising colts from good brood stock should prove a profitable business for those who have money to invest for which they can await a fair return.

Views of The Press

INCLUDING A SENATOR AND A PUBLICIST

Discussing the subject of paranoia, Dr. Irving S. Cutter says:

"As the disease progresses the patient enters what is known as the expansive period, characterized principally by delusions of grandeur. There is nothing that he cannot do. There is no job too large or too important for his mental equipment.

"Many paranoiacs have distinguished themselves and certain authorities place in the category of paranoia such figures as John Brown, Jean Paul Marat, and Benvenuto Cellini. Occasionally they are founders of a new philosophy or describe a Utopian social order."

Dr. Cutter may or may not be taking a sly dig at Merrrs. Long and Townsend. Most persons will agree, however, that if the doctor has described accurately the advanced stages of paranoia it is one of the most prevalent mental afflictions in the United States.—Keokuk Gate City.

New Criminal Code

Two years ago a revision of the civil code was passed by the Illinois legislature. At this session the new revised criminal code is to be considered. Committees of the legislature and the State Bar Association have co-operated to perfect the new code.

Perhaps the most important provision calls for the abolishment of the grand jury. It is argued that the nation has outgrown the cumbersome body of 23 men, whose functions were established about 1,000 years ago in England. Under the new code those accused of crime would be arraigned in court on information filed by the state's attorney. In case of need of an investigation, an inquiry board of seven members would be formed.

It is hoped for the new code that it will speed up justice and make the way of the transgressor as hard in Illinois as it ought to be. The legislature will consider the revision during the latter half of its session this year.

Baptist Delegation At Cass Meet

Young People of Baptist Church Attend Banquet Friday

A large delegation of young people from the first Baptist church went to Ashland last evening to attend a banquet and program under the auspices of the young people's department of the Morgan-Scott Baptist Association. The meeting concluded an all-day mid-winter session of the association at the Ashland Baptist church.

Two members of the local delegation had part in the program. Miss Thyra Smith gave a reading and Milford Forwood sang a solo. The principal speakers were Charles A. Wells, chalk talk artist, and Dr. Paul Thompson, president of Shurtleff College, Alton.

Those from this city who attended the meeting were Rev. and Mrs. F. D. Stone and daughter, Elnora; Mrs. L. B. Turner, Milford Forwood, LeRoy Ashby, the Misses Ina and Beulah Stewart, Ethel Martin, Thyra Smith, Louise Nicholson, Leanna Clemens and Golda Taylor.

The banquet was served at 6:15 and the delegation left this city about 5:30 o'clock. Eugene Blair of Alsey, county president of the young people's organization, was in charge of the program.

MUCH INTEREST IN NAZARENE REVIVAL

Rev. W. E. Allison, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, announces that splendid interest is being shown in the revival under the leadership of Rev. and Mrs. Grigsby. The Sunshine Girls of Decatur are appearing on the programs.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Billions Back Lobby's War on Holding Company Bill . . . Wall Street Tried Similar Tactics and Lost . . . Hot One Put Over on LaFollette . . . J. Crawford Biggs' Fall Is Well Padded.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington—The utilities holding company bill which President Roosevelt wants is being fought with every back-stage device which can be conceived by a lobby backed by billions of dollars.

The latest secret move is an attack from the rear and an attempt to bore from within the administration itself.

The weapon is that darling of Secretary of Commerce Dan Roper's heart—his Business Advisory and Planning Council, composed of two or three score leading industrialists.

This council's chief function, though it furnishes rotating members for NRA's Industrial Advisory Board, is to serve as a vehicle for getting Mr. Roper's name in the papers.

Every so often Uncle Dan pops out with an announcement of something very important the council is about to do. First it was virtually going to run the NRA. Later it was going to be very important in the reorganized NRA.

Awhile ago it was going to serve as adviser for the $4,000,000,000 work-relief program—though every insider snickered as he heard that one.

It remained for President Harry I. Harriman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who opposes the holding company bill, to figure out how the council could really be useful. (Or perhaps some one suggested it to him).

Harriman paddled down to the Commerce Department. He found in charge of the council Harry Kendall, prominent manufacturer and one of Roosevelt's business advisers.

Kendall was persuaded that the council should oppose the bill.

A report was prepared in which the council recommended that electric and gas holding companies be left in existence.

Roper has the report now. He is trying to get up nerve enough to take it to Roosevelt. But it's all likely to remain a deep dark secret.

Wall Street Tried It

Tactics almost exactly similar were used by Wall Streeters last year in their fight against the administration's stock market regulation bill.

Then the durable goods committee of NRA was persuaded to issue a blast which said the menace of the bill was a distinct impediment to recovery.

The guiding spirit in that action was the president of a world-famous manufacturing corporation who was especially violent against the provision for making complete corporation statements of assets and other facts.

The stock market bill passed. And, by a peculiar coincidence, three months after the Securities Exchange Commission came into existence, that world-famous corporation defaulted on its bonds.

Did This Burn Bob!

Senator Bob La Follette was invited to lunch the other day at a man's house. He couldn't quite place the man when he received the invitation by phone, but the name sounded familiar and he went.

He still couldn't place the host after he saw him, but there were others there and he had a good time.

It wasn't until afterward he learned he had been entertained by a lobbyist for one of the big sugar producing companies. And it happens that the sugar lobbies here are among Bob's pet hates.

Biggs Gets "Looked After"

J. Crawford Biggs has left the extremely important post of solicitor general, as used to be frequently predicted in this column. He would have been out a lot earlier if a "suitable" job could have been found for him.

For a while Biggs was slated for a federal judgeship on the court of appeals here. But that called for a retirement which couldn't be fixed up quickly and there was a widespread demand for a new solicitor general at once. So, he was assigned a $10,000 job as RFC's voting trustee for the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed, his successor, is able and is respected by the supreme court, some of whose members snickered at Biggs.

You'll get the point about Reed if you recall that he was once counsel for the Hoover Farm Board, survived as chief counsel for the RFC, and now holds the government's highest post aside from the politically filled attorney generalcy.

He had to be good to get there. Darned good, in fact.

The Jacksonville High School debate team will leave early Saturday morning for Macomb where they will attempt to defend successfully the championship of the western Illinois district which they have held for the past five years.

The local affirmative will be composed of Jane Dunlap, Mary Butler, and Bill Clark, with Ralph Dunlap, Jr., Edward Johnston, and Robert Fay making up the Crimson negative.

The teams will be accompanied by Harold Gibson, debate coach, and John Deem of the high school faculty. The tournament will be held in the buildings of the Western Teachers College.

The first round of debates will be held at 9:30 o'clock when the Jacksonville affirmative will meet the team from Macomb High school. In this same round the J.H.S. negative will debate the Kewanee affirmative.

The final round of the qualifying debates will take place at 2:45 o'clock when the two J.H.S. teams will meet the affirmative and negative of Western Academy, a high school connected with the Western Teachers College.

The three schools winning the greatest number of debates during the day will meet in the finals at 7:30 in the evening. The winner of the finals will be given the right to attend the state tournament in Bloomington on April 29 and 30. The runner-up in the Macomb tourney will also be allowed to go to Bloomington for the state meet. To the Editor of the Journal and Courier:

New York City.—Flew through these dust storms with the pilot flying entirely by instruments. Where in the world is it going to? It's a terrible thing, and it's going to bring up some queer cases in law. If Colorado blows over and lights on top of Kansas, it looks kinder like Kansas ought to pay for the extra top soil, but Kansas can sue 'em for covering up their crops. Now this week's wind has picked up Colorado, which was in Kansas, taking Kansas with it, and that's what's in the air looking for a new place to light. In the middle west now you got to put a brand on your soil, then in the spring go on a roundup looking for it.

WOMAN INJURES BACK AND CHEST IN FALL AT HOME THURSDAY

Mrs. Amanda Davis fell Thursday at her home on Sherman street and injured her back and chest. She stepped into a hole while walking in the back yard and fell. Her back was so badly wrenched that she cannot straighten to an upright position.

She struck some hard object and injured her chest badly. On account of her age the injuries are proving rather serious, though there are no broken bones. Dr. J. U. Day was summoned and gave medical attention.

BOOKS RECOMMENDED FOR BUSY WOMEN TO KEEP WELL INFORMED

Miss Rose Ranson, chairman of the International Relations committee of the Business and Professional Womans' club, suggests to the members that it is of great importance to study the present day problems and urges the busy woman who wishes to be informed on these matters but has little time for reading, to review the following books, which may be reserved at the Public Library, if not immediately available.

The Air Menace and the Answer, by Fradkin.

The Unseen Assassins, by Angell.

Progress of International Organization, by Hudson.

World Adrift, by Buell.

The "Findings" of the Tenth Cause and Cure of War Conference held recently in Washington will prove invaluable in club programs, and in helping to develop a more intelligent public opinion, which will finally translate itself into effective action.

Of special interest as it relates to World Competition in economic fields is the newly published, "Foreign Trade and the Worker's Job" by Helen Hill, who shows with great clarity the direct relationship between jobs in this country today and the status of foreign trade.

The following was handed us by Coach S. Robey Burns. It was written by Edward J. Geiger, Chicago Evening American sports editor:

"Every sport has its rules and regulations. They have been drawn after careful consideration by men who know the sport and, in most cases, to protect the game as well as those who participate. Basketball, like others, has its rules and regulations, which are followed very closely by the officials. Whether too closely appears to have become an issue with spectators.

"Basketball, college and otherwise, has advanced in interest and popularity until today great crowds are attracted by the sport.

"Nick Kearns, who has officiated for years, has written a letter to give the officials' side of the game. It's a letter well worth while. Here is his letter:

Says Nick Kearns

"I believe all the officials concur in my thought that we are out on a basketball floor to protect the boy. Basketball as it was played years ago, without rules or without whistle blowing, was very comparable to our game of football and hockey.

"If the people who sit in the grandstand would only think of the apparatus worn by a football player to protect every bone in his body as well as his skull, the many pounds of protection worn by a hockey player when he goes out on the rink, and then realize that a basketball player has but one-quarter of a pound of clothing on his body when he plays in that game, I think the official does not blow the whistle sufficiently enough when we get into a game of basketball, which has a tremendous amount of body contact.

Arms Are Broken

"In my past experience I have seen boys with broken arms, wrenched legs and battered up pretty badly in games where the whistle was not sounded sufficiently. Years ago I was criticized in a particular game by one of our outstanding coaches, who said I was blowing too many fouls.

"In passing his bench I told him that I would stop blowing fouls for five minutes. The game had gone on about a minute and a half, when the players realized that the whistle was not being sounded. Within two minutes the coach was off the bench, yelling madly to blow those fouls!

The Right Slants

"The other night in a big game I saw a boy crashed. I blew the whistle. The people 'booed' me. The result was that the player was taken from the game with a so-called 'bad charley-horse.' He was put under diathermic treatment for four days.

"For the next game he was not quite strong enough on account of this injury to play the entire game. His team won, but he was a loss to them, I understand, for the second game five days afterward. This is only one instance; out of the thousands of games I have refereed, I could possibly tell you of hundreds of other similar cases.

"I believe that if the good public that patronizes our basketball games would only appreciate the fact that as we call fouls we are not trying to be the lord and master of the situation, but are only trying to protect the boy from serious injury, which may not develop during that particular game, but which, as a rule, shows up in his after life.

Players See Right

"In walking off a basketball floor I have never been criticized by players for blowing them too often, but I certainly have been criticized for letting the game become rough and ragged.

"So, you see, I believe that if a man who officiates in a game of basketball is, first of all, hontest, has the courage of his convictions and blows the fouls that he sees, he definitely is doing the best there is for the future of basketball.

Six Horses Finish Grueling Four Mile Run in Grand National at Aintree; Last Year's Winner Falls.

BLUE PRINCE SECOND

Aintree, Eng. — (AP) — Once again the favorites fell before the challenge of the outsiders in the grand national steeplechase today as Reynoldstown, a 22 to 1 shot owned by Major Noel Furlong and ridden by his son, Freddie, drove home the winner of the world's greatest equine jumping test, before a crowd of 250,000.

Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller, the heavily played favorite and winner last year, failed to complete the trying four and one-half mile test as Reynoldstown crossed the finish line three lengths in front of Lady Lindsay's Blue Prince, another outsider. John Hay Whitney's American-owned Thomond 2nd, the second choice, was eight lengths back in third place, the same position in which he finished last year.

Only six of the 27 starters finished the long journey. Sir Geoffrey Congreve's lightly weighted Lazy Boots, held at 66 to 1, was fourth followed by H. B. Brandt's Uncle Batt and Miss M. Lark's Bachelor Prince, also long shots.

Golden Miller, carrying the top weight of 175 pounds and a 3 to 1 favorite, found the weight and pace too exacting. He fell at the first fence after Valentine's Brook on the first turn around the course. With his elimination went up groans from the thousands of spectators and shouts of joy from the bookmakers, who stood to lose hundreds of thousands of dollars, as the Favorite had been coupled with Flamenco, winner of the Lincolnshire Wednesday, in the famous "Spring Double."

Furlong had Reynoldstown up with the leaders from the start, being in fifth place at the half-way mark. He quickly moved to the front and showed the way the second time over Becher's Brook to Thomond 2nd and Blue Prince. The margin was not great,however.

At the canal turn the American-owned jumper took command of the situation. From there to the final stages, the race was a three-horse affair. They took the next to the last jump almost together but then Thomond 2nd stuck his head in front and apparently was on his way to victory when he took the last obstacle first.

In the final 300-yard dash to the finish line, however, Thomond 2nd weakened badly while Furlong drove Reynoldstown into the lead and Jockey Parvin, up on Blue Prince, moved up to make a futile challenge. When the three had finished not another horse was in sight.

Second Alton Wreck Holds Up Mail Out Of Chicago Friday

Fifteen Cars of Freight are Derailed Today Near Bloomington

Bloomington, Ill.—(AP)—In the second train wreck of its kind in a week, fifteen freight cars of a Chicago & Alton northbound train blocked the road's right of way three miles north of here early this morning.

No cause had been assigned to the pileup early today, and wrecking crews had not yet arrived. The cars, most of them empty, were in the center of the train. None was injured.

Last week's wreck on the same road, thirty miles north of here, was said to have been caused by a cracked connecting bar in the rails.

The Alton freight wreck north of Bloomington tied up traffic on the main line and delayed the arrival of Chicago mail in this city. The mail delayed comes to Springfield and is brought over here via star route.

The southbound Alton passenger passing through this city in the morning was forty minutes late due to having to wait for connections at Bloomington.

New York Stock Mart Stiffens

By Frank MacMillen,
Associated Press Financial Writer.

New York, March 29.—(AP)—Wall Street reaction today to the Belgian devaluation and the St. Paul reorganization plan was chiefly one of relief.

The stock market stiffened in spots, with rail shares perking up a little, evidently reflecting short covering. Second grade rail bonds continued their downhill slide, however.

The British pound rallied sharply both against the continental gold currencies and againsts the dollar, but this provided little stimulation to American staples.

Rail shares were helped a little by the weekly report of freight movement, showing a larger-than-seasonal gain over the previous week of 10,348 cars, which brought the total within 2,258 cars of the total for the same week of last year.

Nevertheless, Wall Street maintained a cautious attitude toward the rails. With the St. Paul situation clarified with an announcement of a planned reorganization, and other carriers expected to meet their April 1 obligations, no further rail financing trouble were anticipated for a few months.

Two-Way Trend In Stock Mart

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—The hog market developed a two-way trend today with light weights showing the strength. Prices at the close were strong on lights, but others ruled weak to 10 cents lower. The general market had opened steady to 10 cents higher.

The trade had only 9,000, including 4,000 direct, and this offset to some extent bearishness coincident with the Lenten period. Early prices hit a top of $9.10, but this was not touched in late dealings.

Steers and yearlings were steady to strong but few of them were available in the run of 9,000 cattle. All she stock was firm to a shade higher in instances.

Fat lambs opened fully steady to strong, but prices turned weak to 10 cents below early figures in a dull late trade. The top for best slaughter offerings was $8.35. Receipts totaled 12,000.

I.A.A. MEMBERSHIP CONTINUES TO GAIN

Membership in the County Farm Bureaus and the Illinois Agricultural Association is climbing steadily, according to George E. Metzger, field secretary for the Illinois Agricultural Association who recently completed a trip through more than a dozen counties.

From January 1, 1935 to March 9 a total of 2,981 new members were signed, he reports. Based on these figures members are joining at the rate of about 300 a week.

Each county has been given a membership quota providing for an increase of 10 to 50 members per month based on the size of the county. If all counties make their quotas according to Mr. Metzger paid up membership in the association at the close of the year would exceed 80,000.

Wheat Prices Get Setback

By John P. Boughan,
Associated Press Market Editor.

Chicago, March 29.—(AP)—Unsettlement of European finances, together with indications of moisture relief for much drought-stricken domestic crop territory, led to moderate setbacks of wheat prices today.

Monetary uncertainty resulted both from a sudden rise in British exchange rates and from proposed devaluation of Belgian currency. One of the immediate consequences was to exert a restrainng effect on grain trade activity, and for at least the time being serve as a drag on most agricultural values.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ lower, May 94½-⅜, corn ¼-⅜ up, May 79¼-⅜, oats unchanged to ¼ off, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents decline.

Forecasts pointed to rain or snow in southwestern South Dakota and western Nebraska, with unsettled weather in Kansas. Under these conditions, hope developed for a break-up of drought, and gave an advantage to the selling side of the wheat market. Meanwhile, too, reports of dust storms were not as plentiful as heretofore.

Legion Auxiliary of Ashland Makes Gift Candy for Veterans

Large Amount of Candy is Brought to Hospital and Distributed

Ashland—Representatives of the American Legion Auxiliary of Ashland motored to Jacksonville Wednesday afternoon to visit the Veterans at the State Hospital, and to take them an assortment of candy which the ladies had made Tuesday at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Josephine Lynn. Over 50 pounds of sugar was used in the candy made.

There are 333 veterans in the hospital, so, of course, a large amount is needed to give them all a treat. It is the plan each year for the different district units to do something for the boys and Ashland has done its share very creditably.

The party who motored to Jacksonville included Mrs. Gertrude Altman, president; Mesdames Wilma Carter, Mayme Fitzgerald, Daisy Thompson, Josephine Lynn, Kathryn Leahy and Edith Newell.

Will Continue Office

There has been a great deal of concern among the residents of Philadelphia over the probable discontinuance of the post office there, but according to a letter from Hon. Scott W. Lucas at Washington, the department has definitely decided to continue the office at Philadelphia. In view of the department plan of general consolidation and elimination, this is quite a victory for the people in and around Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Siebert Quinley entertained their card club Thursday evening at their home, with three tables in play. Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames Carl Yancy, Nate Parsons, Thomas Caswell, Ray Logan and Hugh Quinley. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

U. of I. Student Honored

Maurice Carl Schewe, of Ashland, a senior at the University of Illinois, was one of 53 students to be elected to the Phi Beta Kappa national honorary scholastic society. This election to membership is indicative of Mr. Schewe's superior scholastic work, since only students having an average of 4.5 or better are considered for membership, and 5.0 is the highest obtainable grade.

"More Money"

by CHARLES GRANT

CHAPTER XXXIV

The only scrap of paper on the broad expanse of Jasper Ingram's desk was the formal notice to Laura from Higgins' bank. He sat silently pondering the problem presented by this demand for a half million dollars. To think that a man's wife, his last refuge in a time of stress, should be the one to precipitate the crisis he now faced. It was incredible. Too vast even to be angry about.

Well, he could still handle this matter. Time. That was all he needed. Just a few days. There were ways of shifting funds, accounts, balances; ways that were within the law; yes, within the bounds of sound financial practice.

There was the half million that had been set aside to take care of the cash payment in the refunding of the maturing bond issue of the Landlock Light and Power Company. It was reasonably certain that a sufficient number of the holders of the six per cent bonds would accept a small cash part payment and a new issue of bonds bearing seven per cent interest. Osgood, his financial fixer, assured him there was no likelihood of the plan failing.

He would pay Higgins Laura's half million at once, in advance of the due date. It would be ruinous to allow Laura's note to go to protest, and he'd see Higgins in hell before he'd ask for an extension. That would indicate, as plainly as default in payment, that his position was weak. Then he would hypothecate Laura's royal jewels and everything else necessary to raise another half million as replacement for the bond payment.

He dispatched his check for a half million dollars to the Higgins bank.

It afforded him considerable relief and a great deal of satisfaction to get back the note marked paid. That would show Higgins something.

On the following morning, a brief news item in the financial pages of the Times, which the average reader would not even notice, was of catastrophic significance to Jasper H. Ingram. Late in the afternoon of the preceding day an obscure bondholder of the Landlock Light and Power Company had petitioned the Courts for the appointment of a receiver. The difference in time between New York and the West had prevented Ingram from getting the news the same day. When he reached his office there were urgent telegrams on his desk, long distance telephone calls to respond to, and no less a person than Osgood waiting to see him.

The telegrams apprised him of little more than the bare facts he gleaned from the brief newspaper report. In long distance talks with the nominal head of the Landlock Company and with the local legal representatives, he learned that a combination of cirmustances, perhaps traceable to a single source, had brought about a situation that now appeared desperate.

It had become known the day previous that the Landlock Bank and Trust Company was in difficulties. It was also known that this bank held a great deal of the paper of the Landlock Light and Power Company. Support finally came to the bank, which was compelled to hypothecate its marketable securities. Virtual control of the bank and control over the paper of the Landlock Light and Power Company thus passed to the powerful New York interests which had come to the aid of the bank. And Jasper Ingram now knew that those "powerful interests" were Higgins and his crowd.

Osgood sat smiling sardonically as he listened to Jasper Ingram's part in the long-distance talks, and though he did not hear what was being told Ingram, he was well aware of the nature of the disclosures.

He crossed to Ingram's private stock ticker. The news of the impending receivership of this comparatively small Ingram unit had startled Wall Street. Ingram securities of every kind were being thrown on the market and when Jasper Ingram finished the last of his long-distance calls he went and stood silently by Osgood's side and watched the trickle of thin ticker tape pass through his fingers.

"Just as easy to stop a flood with a load of sand as to stop this," said Osgood. "Lot of damn sheep. Selling themselves and you at panic prices. Of course, there's not a chance of putting over those refunding plans now."

"I suppose not," said Jasper Ingram.

"Well, I imagine the best thing to do is to wait until this dumping is over and then go out and pick up this stuff of yours at bargain prices."

"Yes, that's the thing to do," said Ingram.

"Tell me, J. H., how did Higgins know you were so vulnerable just now?"

"Oh, there're always ways of finding out things like that," said Ingram, lightly. Certainly he wouldn't tell Osgood about the silly thing Laura had done. That was a family secret. It would remain forever a skeleton in the Ingram family closet.

"There's nothing you can do, Osgood. Thank you for coming so promptly this morning. Let me have your best advice when things settle down a bit. I have a lot of things to put in shape."

"You'll come through all right, J. H.," said Osgood.

"Thanks," said Jasper Ingram.

Of course he would come through all right, Jasper thought when he was alone again, but just at the moment he could not see how nor where, and he shut himself up in his office to study this new desperate aspect of his affairs.

They wanted his scalp, these financial jackals, and they were too short-sighted to realize the harm that the crash of his extensive interests would do to business all over the United States.

They wanted his scalp . . . and they would get it, for his own wife had put the knife into their hands.

When the Stock Exchange closed and Ingram had the final figures before him, he rose and moved, with a curious swing of the shoulders, over to a window, and stood looking down at the street far below, at the weaving cars and the clotting streams of pedestrians on the sidewalks.

He had seen porters in the East, who carried huge burdens on their heads, and he thought now of these human beasts of burden. He recalled that he himself had heaved a sigh of relief as these men lowered their burdens to the ground. He realized that as they did this, they must have enjoyed the same sensation of lurching lightness as he felt now. . . .

Laura had pushed him and his burden had toppled and fallen. Without this monstrous folly of hers, he might have carried on, might have won out, but now he was done for . . . Beaten . . . Through . . .

Leaning against the window-frame with crossed arms, staring down at the hurrying, unimportant midgets, he considered the complicated organism of his holdings, recalled his last estimate of how his assets had shrunk, relative to the swelling menace of his obligations. If this bond refunding plan had gone through, he might have staved off the evil day. But, suddenly clear-eyed, Ingram realized that this would have been only another temporary stop-gap.

As well be through now as a few weeks or months later—

How strange, his lightness of feeling now. How luxurious to stand aside and know that he need no longer carry that top-heavy structure of piled ramifying enterprises, of precarious ventures. For how long, in every waking minute, had he been achingly conscious of that burden, like a juggler never daring to relax his wary balancings? Now he stood clear. What next?

Next, he supposed, the classic finish—

Jasper Ingram went back to his desk, sat down, and from force of habit he took a sheet of paper and a pencil and began to draw figures in idle, unintended geometric designs. He was past making calculations. He thought, with dull, helpless remorse of all the men and women and their young children, who stood to be ruined with him, or rather by the treacherous turn in his luck, and by no will or mistake of his. He had carried on through the storm longer than most captains of industry. A man could do no more than fight to the limit of his strength, and then go down with his ship, as he meant to do.

He opened the central drawer of his desk and reaching far back in it, felt the chill curves of a .45 Colt revolver. He withdrew his hand after making sure the weapon was there. He had work to do, work for several days, before he would be free to use it. He had to stand by to the last minute, clear such of his involved affairs as could be cleared, and leave everything as ship-shape as might be. Otherwise the whole interlocked system of companies would crash on to indiscriminate ruin.

Jasper reached these decisions philosophically, while puffing on a fine cigar. If Laura had been his wife in any true sense; if he could have believed she had any real love for him, he would not think of giving her this second blow on top of the stroke that his ruin would deal her.

A far more poignant thought was of his son. If he and Seward had been closer to each other, nothing would force him to take this step. But he and Seward were estranged, and, no doubt, the boy still despised him. Some of the things Seward had said when they quarreled over Arline Martin came back to him now, hurting him again and stiffening him in his resolution to bring all things to an end.

He was through. He had lived. He had made a good fight but he had lost it. The turn of the wheel of Fate, the fortune of war. He would have peace soon. He felt very tired now, and looked forward, almost eagerly, to a long rest.

* * *

Cathleen remained away from the office until the day after Joe's funeral. She saw Seward only briefly on that occasion, but now he was waiting for her.

"Look here, Cathleen!" He ignored her surprise at seeing him, and made her sit down and listen. "There'll be a mob boiling in here in about a minute, so don't let's waste any time we don't have to. . . .

"Maybe you're still too broken up about your brother to want to listen to me. It's because I know you're so unhappy that I can't wait. . . . Maybe I could comfort you—if my love could do that."

Seward's voice went husky, but he forced out the words. "You know I love you. Cathleen—You're the darlingest girl on earth! You've got to marry me—you've simply got to! Your father's willing, because I had a talk with him."

Cathleen gazed at him without a word, but her eyes were deep and luminous with tormented emotion. She had been so miserable, so hopeless, and now in half a dozen awkward breathless sentences Seward had changed the world for her. Even though she couldn't marry him.

Her mouth quivered as she tried to smile. "I ought not to let you say it, because of course it's impossible!—only, anyhow, I'll always have it to remember. . . . What you said."

"And aren't you going to say something for me to remember?" Seward asked with a touch of sternness. He caught her hand and squeezed it so hard that it gave her welcome, steadying pain.

"I think I could love you if I let myself. Oh! I do love you. I have, all along! But we mustn't, Seward —why, imagine what your father and mother would say!"

"They haven't got a syllable to say about this. You've said all I'm interested in hearing, you darling, beautiful—"

He was stronger than she, and she had filled him with so much happy confidence that her attempt to repulse him now was quite futile. He leaned against somebody's typewriter desk with his arms strained around her, and since her face was hidden against his chest, kissed the lustrous dark hair that ran in rippled smoothness from her forehead to the knot at the nape of her neck.

"I've got you now!" he exulted. "Everything that matters in the whole world, right here in my arms—"

She'd never be in them again, Cathleen thought, as wave after wave of responsive tenderness broke over her. Let her make the most of her position then while it lasted, let her have something more to remember! She tilted her face up quickly and they kissed, a long satisfying, uniting kiss.

Landscape Grounds At Pumping Station

Relief Crew Repairs Levee of Dam, Plant Trees; Start Homes Survey

Fifteen men from the work relief corps in this county began work this week on an extensive project at the city pumping plant. Considerable landscaping is being done on the grounds of the plant and in the small park between the plant and the dam.

The levee of the dam is being repaired and landscaped. Trees are being planted along the drive in front of the plant. The interior of the building is also to be repainted. Scores of trees are to be planted in the vicinity of the dam and the pumping station. The project will require several week to complete.

Eight men were put to work Friday by Superintendent Byron Beard on the project calling for a complete home survey of Jacksonville. The men will check homes, find out their state of repair and whether or not they are modern and equipped with conveniences.

Government surveys for cities the size of Jacksonville show that only about a fourth of the homes have furnace heat, and that not more than half have sewer facilities. It is believed that this city will show a much higher rating on modern conveniences than the average of other cities.

LIBRARY CUTS RESPONSIBLE FOR NEW BILLS

Four Measures Before Illinois Legislature; Citizens Petition Support

Citizens who have discovered many public library shelves as bare as Mother Hubbard's Cupboard, because of drastic cuts in library funds, are putting their shoulder to the wheel to support the four library bills now pending in the Illinois legislature, it has been learned here by Miss Charlotte Ryan, librarian of the Jacksonville Public Library.

Men and women in many sections of the state are signing petitions and rousing their neighbors to see the significance of the library legislation to their own communities, according to the report just received here from Michael F. Gallagher, chairman of the legislative committee of the Illinois Library Association.

"People are beginning to see that libraries are as important as schools, especially to young people who can no longer go to school and must depend upon the library as their main source of education," said Mr. Gallagher after a meeting of library experts from the state, called in Chicago recently. Reports were made on the progress made in the present campaign to acquaint people with the importance of the library bills which [illegible] expected to come up for hearing [illegible] the appropriations committee in April.

To bring library service to two million people in the state now without it is the main purpose of House Bill No. 402, it was explained. If the bill passes, the sum of $500,000 would be appropriated each year for a two-year period from the general fund of the state.

"Boys and girls, men and women, especially on farms and in smaller communities are seeking book service, but it is not now available," declared Mr. Gallagher in commenting on the bill. "The legislation will not require the construction of new buildings, or any new boards or commissions. A state-wide book service will be organized and furnished through existing libraries and the state library extension division, and the entire fund will go for library service as needed in every county. No new taxes are proposed in connection with the library legislation; financing of the service being asked for from the general fund of the state."

Equally necessary is House Bill 406 which would appropriate $600,000 for the purchase of books and periodicals by all libraries in the state, and $10,000 for the administration of the Act, Mr. Gallagher explained. He pointed out the drastic need for this appropriation in the face of the fact that funds available for book purchases in Illinois libraries since 1923 have decreased 53 per cent, while demands of the people for library books have enormously increased.

"Men and women as well as boys and girls are crowding libraries, appealing for books, not alone for recreation but for their education and work," said Mr. Gallagher, "but their demands are refused, in a large measure, because the volumes cannot be provided. This serious shortage of books prevails in most of the cities of the state."

Registered borrowers in Illinois in 1933 numbered nearly two hundred thousand more than the combined enrollment of students in public schools, normal schools and the state university, according to Mr. Gallagher. For the eight cents per capita spent on book service, Illinois citizens borrowed from their public libraries approximately ten dollars per capita worth of books.

Two other library bills, N. H. 403 and 404, now before the legislature, provide for the certification of librarians in free tax-supported libraries it was explained. These require employees of libraries to meet reasonable educational requirements.

Local support is being given these bills by the Jacksonville Branch of the American Association of University Women, the Jacksonville Woman's Club, and various other organizations.

AUTO LABOR BOARD WILL ISSUE RULES

Detroit, March 29.—(AP)—Dr. [illegible] Wolman said today on the anniversary of the opening of the offices of the president's Autimobile Labor Board here, that the board would issue broad rules to guide collective bargaining negotiations in the industry within the next few days.

Denying that he had any intention of resigning as chairman, Wolman refused to predict whether he would remain in his present post for another year with the remark that "too many things can happpen within a year."

The board will conduct 15 employes' nominating elections in the middle west and east next week, he said.

Prof. Francis E. Ross, who had been in charge of the employe representation elections, said that final elections now had been completed in 28 plants, nominating elections had been held in 46 plants, and that from 25 to 30 nominating elections remained to be held, including those scheduled for next week.
